

REEVE ALEUTIAN Lockheed 188C Electra

Founded in 1932 as a charter airline, Reeve Airways played an important role in WWII ferrying supplies to the Aleutians. On April 8, 1948, it was granted scheduled authority to the Aleutians from their Anchorage base. The name changed slightly to Reeve Aleutian Airways in April of 1951. RAA has operated a colorful mix of aircraft over the years including the DC-3, DC-4, DC-6B, YS-11A and the pictured Electra to these rugged islands often shrouded in bad weather. RAA has continued their dependable service tradition by recently adding Boeing 727s to their fleet.
